ACCOUNT OF THE CLASSES IN MEDIÆVAL HISTORY AT THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS.

I.

It would perhaps be generally admitted by competent persons that down to a comparatively recent date, the study of Palæography in this country has been, for the most part, casually and fitfully pursued in the School of Self-Help which is characteristic of our individualistic methods, if it is not to some extent a national reproach.

For the most part, also, the object of the students has been to acquire the art of deciphering ancient writings without any regard for the significance of their comparative forms.

Quite recently the importance of a scientific study of the subject has been recognised in several British Universities; that is to say, instruction has been given in the theory as well as in the practice of the auxiliary studies.

The earliest teaching of this kind was given at Oxford, where the valuable results obtained by the classes held by Mr. F. Madan and Dr. R. L. Poole are well-known. Almost at the same time, the importance of these studies, in connection with practical research work in Early Economic History, was realised by the authorities of the London School of Economics, where Mr. Sidney Webb, the Chairman of the Governors, was already engaged, in conjunction with Mrs. Webb, upon the original investigations which have since appeared in the volumes of the "History of English Local Government and other works." Professor W. A. S. Hewins, at that time the Director of the School, was also engaged in researches for the Economic History of the later and post-Mediæval periods in connection with the well-known publications, "Social England," and the "Dictionary of Political Economy."

Thus it befell that towards the end of the year 1895 a course of theoretical and practical instruction in Palæography and Diplomatic was determined upon by Mr. Webb and Professor Hewins, and was planned in communication with Mr. Hubert Hall of the Record Office in the first quarter of 1896. This course began in the April following, and has been continued ever since. Following the valuable suggestion of the late Professor York Powell, whose interest in the new London "School of Charters" was frequently manifested, instruction in "Historical Sources" was included in the new curriculum and the classification of MSS., together with the elements of Historical Bibliography, became a special feature of the Seminar work in this department of the London School of Economics.

The prospectuses of these courses, which may be found in the Calendars of the School, included systematised teaching in Palæography and Diplomatic with occasional courses in Historical Sources and Criticism, each of these courses being supplemented by practical instruction by means of Facsimiles of MSS. and exhibitions of MSS. and books, as well as by a Seminar in which the transcription and editing of some Historical text was carried out under the supervision of the lecturer. For academic purposes the usual discipline of essays and examinations was observed together with individual direction of the studies and researches of the students. Such was the useful but limited organisation that then provided the only systematic instruction in the Auxiliary Studies of History in the University of London or, perhaps, in any English university with the exception of Oxford. It was, however, obvious that this organisation needed to be supplemented in the interests of a large body of post-graduate students resident in London, where the national archives and museums afford an unequalled opportunity for the pursuit of historical research.

In 1897 a paper was read before the Royal Historical Society by the late Professor York Powell, in which he strongly advocated the establishment of an Ecole des Chartes in London, as a State institution ; but his appeal met with no response. A few years later, however, in 1900, the present Master of Peterhouse, Dr. A. W. Ward, then President of the Royal Historical Society, propounded a scheme of Advanced Historical Study in the course of a Presidential Address. This scheme was subsequently circulated, discussed and formulated by a Committee, under the chairmanship in turn of Mr. James Bryce and Dr. G. W. Prothero, representing the views of nearly 200 representative historical scholars who formed the first body of donors and subscribers to the Advanced Historical Teaching Fund, to which the Mansion House Committee of the Creighton Memorial Fund generously transferred a large portion of its public subscriptions.

Sufficient support having been promised to enable the Committee to establish two lectureships, it was resolved to take advantage of the existing technical instruction given at the London School of Economics (University of London) in order to provide further advanced teaching of a purely historical character at the most convenient centre for research work in the Archives.

In pursuance of this decision of the Committee of the Advanced Historical Teaching Fund, Mr. Hubert Hall, then Lecturer and now Reader in Palæography and early Economic Sources in the University of London, and Mr. I. S. Leadam, formerly Fellow and tutor of Brasenose College, Oxford, were appointed To deliver courses of lectures and to conduct Seminars in Advanced History at the above University School. The lecturers' reports for the years 1901-1904 were printed in the First, Second, and Third Reports of the Committee, and details of the courses will be found in the Calendars of the London School of Economics and of the University of London for those years. In February, 1905, a public meeting was held under the chairmanship of Mr. R. B. Haldane, supported by Dr. G. W. Prothero, Professor Firth and other historical scholars, for the purpose of raising sufficient funds to continue the work that had already produced such valuable results. Further subscriptions were generously promised at this meeting and the lectures were continued for a further period of three years.

Mr. Hall's lectureship was continued during the whole of this period, and the services of Mr. George Unwin, afterwards Lecturer in Economic History in the Universities of Edinburgh and Birmingham, were also secured for a series of lectures on the early government of London. Owing to the gradual diminution of the fund, through the falling-off of the original subscribers, it was found possible to maintain one lecturer only during the years 1907-8, and at the close of the academic session of 1908-9, the payments made from this Fund were suspended.

It must not be supposed, however, that the falling off of subscriptions was due to any slackening of the endeavours of the Committee or its lecturers. The period 1905-1908 was remarkable both for increased attendance of students and the maintenance of a very high standard of teaching, as will be evident from a reference to the University Calendars of those years, as well as to the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Reports of the Committee. During this period also, Mr. Hall's students paid a memorable visit to the Ecole des Chartes and the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris, and produced two works of considerable historical merit in the shape of Formula Books of Diplomatic Documents and Legal Records, whilst they are still engaged upon a much-needed Bibliography of Mediæval Economic History. For a detailed description of the Advanced Historical Teaching carried on, under the Direction and with the co-operation of the Committee, at the London School of Economics, reference may be made to Appendix I of the Fifth Report of the Committee, dated July, 1907.

It may be added that since the contributions made by the Advanced Historical Teaching Fund have ceased, the London School of Economics has provided the means for continuing the work on the same scale as before.

As evidence of the valuable and important character of this work the following facts may be of interest:—

(a) During the above period it has been estimated that nearly 200 students have availed themselves of the instruction in Advanced History, provided at the London School of Economics. Of these, a large proportion were graduates of English, Welsh, Scottish and Irish Universities with a few Continental and Oriental students, and a considerable number of American graduates. Many of these students were already engaged in historical teaching or research, while several were proficient in either capacity, and it is pleasing to find that many of the younger students have since distinguished themselves as writers or teachers, both in the United Kingdom and abroad. That the provision made for their assistance has been appreciated, may be gathered from the fact that recently nearly 100 of Mr. Hall's old students presented him with a handsome testimonial, whilst, in commemoration of his 30th year of service at the Public Record Office, Mr. Hall received a further testimonial subscribed by more than fifty historical scholars in the United States, many of whom have attended his lectures.

(b) The titles of some of the contributions to historical knowledge by students, in connection with their researches under the supervision of the lecturers, will be found in the calendars of the University of London, and further reference will be made below to Papers or Articles published in various learned periodicals. In respect of academic distinctions it may be mentioned that eight out of a dozen students who have received the degree of D.Sc., in the Faculty of Economics (London), have benefited by the above instruction, as also have recipients of the degrees of D.Litt. and M.A. in the Faculty of Arts (London); whilst in the 1909 examination for the B.Sc. degree (London), one of Mr. Hall's students was placed alone in Class I (Honours). Again, the Alexander Medal of the Royal Historical Society has been awarded to Mr. Hall's students in six out of ten years. Finally, numerous posts or employment as historical lecturers and as archivists or researchers have been obtained by students, as the result of their training in the courses provided by the School.

(c) The following courses have been given :—

(1) By Mr. Hall :—

Palæography (elementary and advanced) dealing with Latin, French and English documents and MSS. 6th—18th centuries (1896-1911).

Diplomatic (elementary and advanced), including Chronology and Sigillography (1896-1911).

Archæology (elementary), including Numismatics, Architecture, and Heraldry (1906-8).

The Sources of English Manorial History (with a Bibliography) (1902-3).

The Church as a Landlord during the Middle Ages (1902-3).

The Evolution of Accounts (1902).

The Sources, Palæography and Diplomatic of English Historical Documents, with a Bibliography (1903-4).

Select Documents illustrating the Political History of the Mediæval States of Western Europe; with a Bibliography (1904-6).

The Equipment of the Historical Student (1906-8).

The Sources of Mediæval Economic History; with a Bibliography (1896-1911).

(2) By Mr. Leadam :—

Analysis and Criticism of Historical Sources —Early Tudor Period. (1902-4).

Early Tudor History from original Sources (1904-5).

(3) By Mr. Unwin :

London Guilds and Livery Companies (1905-6).

History of Mediæval London (1906-7).

(d) The following Historical Publications have been prepared in Mr. Hall's Seminar :—

The Receipt Roll of the Exchequer for Michaelmas Term, 1185, collated with the contemporary Pipe Roll (1899).

The Pipe Roll of the Exchequer of the See of Winchester, 1208 (1902).

A Formula Book of Diplomatic Documents (7th-19th centuries). (Cambridge University Press, 1908).

A Formula Book of Legal Records (10th-17th centuries). (Cambridge University Press, 1909).

(e) Amongst the academic theses, papers read before learned societies, and many original articles or papers contributed by students to the English Historical Review, the American Historical Review, the Scottish Historical Review, the Transactions of the Royal Historical Society, and other works of original research published by students of the School, the following may be mentioned :—

Social England in the Fifteenth Century. By A. Abram, B.A., D.Sc. (Econ.). 1909.

The Commercial Relations of England and Portugal, 1200-1807. By A. B. Wallis Chapman, D.Sc. (Econ.), and V. M. Shillington, D.Sc. (Econ., 1907.

The Council in the Marches of Wales. By C. A. J. Skeel, D.Litt. 1904.

The English Peasantry and the Enclosure of Common Fields. By Gilbert Slater, M.A.

The Commercial Relations between England and Ireland. By A. E. Murray, D.Sc. (Econ.). 1903.

(f) The Library of the London School of Economics contains a useful collection of historical works, especially for the study of Economic History, and a large collection of maps. It also possesses probably the most extensive collection of Facsimiles of MSS. for academic instruction to be found in this country. (See Appendix II.) These are available on loan to students, and are used by them for exercises, which are corrected by the Lecturer, a practice which forms an important feature of the course of instruction.

II.

The instruction given in this School of the University of London since the year 1896, in Advanced History and the Auxiliary Studies of History, has always been of both a theoretical and practical character.

In the first place there are the Courses of Lectures on the cognate subjects of Palæography, Diplomatic and Historical Sources. Again, each of these Courses is supplemented by Practical Instruction in the shape of exercises or theses, and exhibitions of MSS. or books, as well as by Seminars, in which the Transcription and Editing of some historical text is carried out under the supervision of the Lecturer. For academic purposes there is also the regular direction of the studies, and researches of students who are engaged in preparing theses for the Doctorate or M.A. degree in Economic Science. This instruction may be described under the following sections, as to which it may be remarked that (c) and (d) were provided and arranged by the Committee of the Advanced History Teaching Fund above referred to, which has issued detailed Reports from 1902 to 1909.

(a) Elementary Palæography.—During the first Term students attend an elementary Course of Lectures on the history and classification of writings, and they are also thoroughly grounded in the system of the contractions in MSS., and in the approved system of Extension, with the help of a carefully selected Glossary of Contractions, and lists of typical Extensions. After practice in the identification of the conventional symbols used in "Record Type," the class proceeds to study and decipher Latin MSS. from the 8th to the 12th Centuries from photographic facsimiles, supplemented by the occasional inspection of original MSS. The students are also supplied with copies of compilations specially prepared by the Lecturer, including "A List of the Commoner Mediæval Christian Names and Surnames"; "Technical Terms found in Mediæval Records"; "The Terminology of MSS."; "Formulas and Classification of Records and MSS.," etc.

By the end of the first term, students are able to read any work printed in Record Type, and they can also read with fair facility Latin MSS. of the 8th to the 12th Century, represented by such familiar types as Royal Charters and Ancient Deeds, Domesday Book, the Pipe Rolls, and the Book-hand of the period. Moreover, they are able to extend these MSS. according to either of the systems in general use, and they have begun to possess a knowledge of the formulas and diplomatic characteristics of the period. In their second and third terms, students continue the practice in deciphering Latin MSS., and special lectures are devoted to an explanation of the archaisms of the Old French vocabulary and accidence. They have been already instructed in the forms of the Old English letters, and a continuous view of the development of the vernacular writing is given to the end of the 17th Century, including the chief peculiarities of the State Papers. Special attention is paid to the difficult writing of the period 1450-1732, associated with the artificial scripts known as "Court-hand," "Chancery," and "Secretary."

Students are encouraged to show up exercises in the transcription and extension of facsimiles which can be procured on loan from the Library for this purpose, and which are duly marked and registered. There is a Sessional Examination in Palæography and Diplomatic at the end of the Summer Term.

When a class is formed for the study of Advanced Palæography, greater attention is paid to the theoretical development of the national writings, and to the bibliography of the subject. The following headings may be regarded as indicating the scope of the lectures given in both courses :—

Palæography (Elementary and Advanced).

(1) The Evolution of the National Writings.
(2) Mediæval Writing in Latin.
(3) Mediæval Writing in French.
(4) Vernacular Writing, 8th-18th Centuries.
(5) Later Official Writings (artificial). "Court-hand," "Chancery," "Secretary," "Littera Sancti Petri," etc.
(6) The Mediæval Scriptorium (Monastic and Royal).
(7) Palæographical Terms and Texts.
(8) Contractions (History and Systems of).
(9) Extensions (Rules for).
(10) Bibliography of Palæography.

(b) Diplomatic (Elementary).—The instruction given in this subject is necessarily elementary, as its chief object is to assist students in acquiring a sound and intelligent knowledge of mediæval Palæography. For the same reason, the scope of the instruction is not confined to purely Diplomatic documents, but includes a study of the formulas of Records.

The following headings will show the character of the instruction :—

(1) History of the study of Diplomatic.

(2) The Evolution of the Charter (Charters, Writs, under the Great and Small Seals, Sign Manual Warrants, Letters, etc., formulas and classification of).

(3) Inquisitions, Accounts, Pleadings and other Records, formulas and classification of.

(4) The Chancery.

(5) Diplomatic Criticism.

(6) Technical Chronology.

(7) Auxiliary Studies (Seals, etc.).

(8) Bibliography of Diplomatic.

(c) Historical Sources, including both MSS. and printed books, form the subject matter of other courses of lectures. These courses* have dealt with such subjects as the History of MSS. Collections, the principles of Heuristic, Classification of MSS. and Historical Composition. Particulars of the several courses given in recent years have been published in the Calendar of the School, and detailed syllabuses have been circulated.

Each of these courses has been illustrated by the exhibition or inspection of MSS. and books, by visits to Public Archives and Libraries, and by the progressive compilation of hand-lists of MSS., and of select bibliographies.

(d) An Advanced Seminar has also been held almost continuously for practical work, in connection with which several editions of historical texts have been undertaken by the students under the supervision of the lecturer.*

(e) The two University readers in Economic History† (Dr. Lilian Knowles and Mr. Hubert Hall) have co-operated in the supervision of the original researches of students in the mediæval and modern periods, and individual direction has been given by them to a large number of external and internal students in connection with the preparation of theses for the degrees of D.Sc. (Econ.) or M.A. (Lond.). In addition to the above, students have received assistance in connection with their library or professional work, or in preparation for the Entrance Examination for the British Museum (MSS. department), University Scholarships, etc.

* See above, (d).

† The above account of the historical instruction at the School does not, of course, include the important and extensive curriculum for the modern period of Economic History under the direction of Dr. Lilian Knowles (University Reader), nor the teaching in History, Geography, Law, and Public Administration in other Departments of the School, for which reference may be made to the Calendar. It may be added that owing to the recent increase of Mr. Hall's official responsibilities he has received valuable assistance from Mr. Hilary Jenkinson B.A. F.S.A., who is announced to deliver Mr. Hall's lectures during next session.

APPENDIX I

ADVANCED HISTORY TEACHING FUND—REPORT ON THE WORK OF THE CLASSES IN PALAEOGRAPHY, DIPLOMATIC AND HISTORICAL SOURCES, AT THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS,*

During the Session 1906-7.

(By Hubert Hall, F.S.A., Appointed Teacher in Early Economic History.)

During the past Session (1906-1907), Part I. of the course of lectures on "The Equipment of the Historical Student" has been given in accordance with the Prospectus printed in the Calendar of the London School of Economics.

In this course the Sources of British History (including European relations) were dealt with in considerable detail, the subject of the lectures given in the three terms being the description of documents and printed books, and the use of various inventories and catalogues referring thereto. Thus the students have been able to form some idea of the nature, position, classification, and uses of Official and Local Records and Historical MSS., as well as to realise these conceptions by the inspection of MSS. and printed books at the Record Office and British Museum under the guidance of the lecturer. At the same time a Select Bibliography has been compiled and circulated during the progress of the course, and this will be issued as a private hand-list for the use of students in the same form as the Select Bibliography in connection with a two years' course on "European Historical Documents."

* Reprinted from the Annual Report presented by Mr. H. R. Tedder, F.S.A., the Hon. Sec. and Treasurer of the Fund.

In the Seminar for the execution of practical work in connection with the transcription and editing of Historical Texts, good progress has been made with the preparation of an important "Formula Book," and arrangements will, it is hoped, be shortly completed for enabling the first part to be sent to press.

The attendances at the lectures and in the Seminar have been good, and the annexed list of the forty students, who have entered during the session, will show the value of the instruction given.

A considerable number of students have also attended my course of lectures, and the class in Palæography and Diplomatic in the London School of Economics. Three of the students who have attended the lectures received the degree of D.Sc. (Econ.) in the University of London in May last, in connection with Theses which will shortly be published. Several others are engaged in the preparation of Theses for the degrees of D.Sc. or M.A. under my direction.

During Whitsun week a large party of my students met me in Paris by previous arrangement, for the purpose of inspecting the Archives Nationales and the Bibliothèque Nationale, and thanks to the arrangements kindly made by M. Charles Bémont, secretary of the Ecole des Chartes and directeur-adjoint of the Ecole des Hautes Etudes, we had the benefit of the expert guidance of several distinguished officials and professors whose description of the MSS. and books exhibited for our inspection was greatly appreciated by their visitors. We were also privileged to go over the Ecole des Chartes, where the students were seen at work, and the arrangements made for their instruction were explained to us. An account of this visit has been published in the Athenæum (June 1st) and in the Journal des Debats (May 29th).

I propose during next session to begin Part II. of the Course of Lectures already authorised by the Director. In this course I propose to deal with those auxiliary studies (Palæography, Diplomatics, Sigillography, Numismatics and Archæology) which are of such importance for the "Equipment of the Historical Student"; and (as already reported by me) I hope to arouse the interest of the custodians of the several archæological collections of the Metropolis in the work of the School, and to enable my students to benefit by their expert suggestions.

I have recently been invited to contribute a special account of the classes held at the London School of Economics to the forthcoming number of the American Historical Review, for the information of American post-graduate students in London, to whom the courses are likely to be of increasing service. Already upwards of twenty foreign students, chiefly American graduates, have attended these classes, and it will be seen from the annexed list* that five American graduates attended the course for the past session.

NOTE.—The greater part of Series IV., which is used for reading in class is now made up to the number of 18 copies of each plate.

PREFACE

I HAVE been asked to write a few words by way of Preface to these two small Bibliographies which Miss Moore has been at some pains to compile, and which Mr. Sidney Webb has recommended for publication in an appropriate series.

Amongst ourselves the subject of Historical Bibliography has been so grievously neglected that almost any essay of this kind should prove acceptable. In the present instance, the select Bibliographies that have been undertaken are such as prove of real value to those who have occasion to study the theory of the auxiliary studies of Palæography and Diplomatic, or the several branches of early manorial and agrarian history. At the present moment, perhaps the most instructive current bibliography of Palæography compiled in this country is the periodical list issued to members of the New Palæographical Society, whilst no compendious bibliography of Diplomatic and its kindred subjects is available for English students. Moreover, the "Lists" printed in this volume have been compiled by a student of these subjects for the use of her fellow-students, and some regard should be paid to the practical value of such a method of selection.

Miss Moore herself has had experience of the requirements of students in the two Universities of London and Edinburgh, whilst in the course of her professional work for the Victoria County History, and of her researches at the Public Record Office and British Museum, she has gained a considerable experience of the requirements of students which she has set herself to supply as far as possible in the following Lists.

For my own part I feel sure that I shall find both these compilations very useful, and, as most of us are merely students of such subjects as these, it may be hoped that this contribution to the general store of knowledge will be kindly received by our fellow students.

The work has benefited by the very kind permission of Miss Frances G. Davenport, Ph.D., of the Carnegie Institution, Washington (whom I am proud to count amongst my earlier students), to use the valuable materials collected by her for the well-known " Classified List of Printed Original Materials for English Manorial and Agrarian History," published in 1894. Miss Moore's compilation may therefore be regarded as a version of this admirable " List," on broader lines, including later works and, to some extent, unpublished sources. Even such a revised version, however, can only be regarded as stopping a gap in the Bibliography of this section of Mediæval Economic History, which has fortunately begun to receive the attention of a seminar at Oxford, conducted by the greatest living authority upon the subject.

Although no titles of works published later than 1910 were included when this volume was in the press more than a year ago, the delay in its publication, due to various causes, has enabled Miss Moore to add a few titles of special interest dated in 1911,

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF MANORIAL AND AGRARIAN HISTORY.

A CLASSIFIED LIST OF WORKS RELATING TO ENGLISH MANORIAL AND AGRARIAN HISTORY, FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO THE YEAR 1660.

The titles of works which have not been examined by the compiler are marked with an asterisk.

I.—CATALOGUES OF MANUSCRIPT COLLECTIONS.

(a) Official Archives.

It is the custom of modern Historical Bibliographers to attempt some description of the unpublished sources of History. These may be conveniently classified according to their custody, whether in official Archives or in the Manuscript Departments of the great Libraries and other collections of a public nature as well as amongst the private muniments of ecclesiastical, legal, and municipal corporations or of private individuals.

The "Official Archives" above referred to are practically co-extensive, in England, with the Public Records; but a few collections are to be found under the official control of certain Public Departments, notably the Ecclesiastical Commission, Greenwich Hospital (Admiralty), the Office of Woods and Forests, and the Duchy of Cornwall.

It is not possible to mention here more than the titles of the several classes of Public Records which are more or less valuable as sources of information on the subject of Manorial or Agrarian History, and of which some portion at least remains unpublished. The arrangement adopted here is the old "proprietary" classification by courts and departments; but it should be remembered that some of these ancient collections have recently been broken up and distributed amongst various "Special Collections" which will be referred to below.

1. Records of the Court of Chancery.

Ancient Deeds, Chancery Proceedings (Early Series and Series I.), Charter Rolls, Cartæ Antiquæ, County Placita, Darell and Stonor Papers (some of these family papers, exhibited in Chancery, have been transferred to State Papers Supplementary), Forest Proceedings, Inquisitions Post Mortem, Miscellaneous Inquisitions, Miscellanea of the Chancery.

2. Records of the King's Court.

Curia Regis Rolls, Assize Rolls, etc., Feet of Fines.

3. Records of the Court of Exchequer.

(a) King's Remembrancer's Department.

Accounts of Alien Priories, Ministers' Accounts, Inquisitions, Ancient Extents, Rentals and Surveys, Miscellaneous Books, Miscellanea of the Exchequer, Forest Proceedings.

(b) Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer's Department.

Pipe Rolls, Enrolled Accounts, Foreign Accounts, Miscellaneous Rolls.

(c) Exchequer of Receipt.

Miscellaneous Rolls, Miscellaneous Books, Miscellanea.

(d) Treasury of the Receipt.

Forest Proceedings, Miscellaneous Books.

(e) Augmentation Office.

Conventual Leases, Duchy of Cornwall Records, Ministers' and Receivers' Accounts, Miscellaneous Books.

(f) Land Revenue Department.

Court Rolls, Receivers' Accounts, Miscellaneous Books.

(g) First Fruits and Tenths Office.
The King's Books, Liber Decimarum.

4. Records of Palatinates.

(a) Palatinate of Chester and Flint and Welsh Records.

Eyre Rolls, Forest Rolls, Quo Warranto Rolls, Ruthin Records, Miscellaneous Rolls and Books.

(b) Palatinate of Durham.
Halmote Court Books.

(c) Palatinate of Ely. (Not yet transferred to offical custody.)

(d) County Palatine and Duchy of Lancaster.
Royal Charters, Miscellaneous Books (e.g. Nos. 13 to 64), Forest Proceedings, Rentals and Surveys, Ministers' Accounts, Special Commissions, Leases, Plans, and Maps.

Of the "Special Collections" above referred to, the most important are Ministers' Accounts, Rentals and Surveys, Court Rolls and Ancient Deeds. Printed official lists exist for the first three of these, and for several of the series previously mentioned, and official Calendars exist for the Charter Rolls and Ancient Deeds. A limited number of Record texts have been published by the Old Record Commission, and many more in modern times, as well as Calendars, or Abstracts, by the Local Historical Societies (see Appendix). For the whole of these Archives special reference should be made to Mr. Scargill-Bird's well-known "Guide to the Public Records" (1908).

(b) Unofficial Manuscripts.

A large number of unpublished Manorial documents such as Surveys, Extents, Rentals, Custumals, Court Rolls, Accounts, etc., are to be found amongst the Muniments of corporations and private individuals as well as in Libraries and other collections. A "Guide" to these sources is still a desideratum, but useful lists are given by Nicholls (No. 5), Hone (No. 4), Davenport (No. 10), Gross (No. 15), "Local Records" and the Manorial Society's publications. The Reports of the Historical Manuscripts Commission, though as a rule taking little notice of manorial and other economic documents, are of some assistance. Some valuable catalogues have been published by private enterprise, and the contents of the great collections of the British Museum, Bodleian, etc., can be ascertained from the official catalogues (Nos. 1—3) of those institutions. A large proportion of the private collections referred to above still remain undescribed and practically inaccessible to students.

1. Bodleian Library, Calendar of Charters and Rolls preserved in the. Ed. W. H. Turner and H. O. Cox. 1878.
2. British Museum, Catalogue of Additional Manuscripts. 1843, etc.
3. British Museum, Index to the Charters and Rolls in the Department of Manuscripts. Ed. H. J. Ellis and F. B. Bickley. 1900.
   ∴These are the most important for the subject. The Cotton, Harleian, Lansdown, and other well-known collections are not rich in manorial or agrarian materials.
4. Hone, N. J. The Manor and Manorial Records. The Antiquary's Books. 1906. (App. I., Lists of Court Rolls in various depositories.)
